Introduction

Pakistan is a country of cultures, languages, and religions. According to the report published online by Human Rights Watch, there are 96.47% are Muslims, followed by 2.14% Hindus, 1.27% Christians, 0.09% Ahmadies, and 0.02% others (HRW, 2023). Despite being rich in culture and the address of the founding leader, Pakistan become a hub for human rights violations for minority groups. Despite constitutional guarantees and international commitment, minorities in Pakistan-comprising religious, ethnic, and sectarian grounds- often face discrimination, violence, and systematic injustices. In this article we will explore the types, causes, and figures of these violations, we will also be using the facts and figures which are related to such violations. We also investigated the pervasive Human rights violations against minority communities with a focus on Legal, Social, and institutional facts that contribute to such marginalized persecution.

Literature Review: Historical Context

The Quid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah in his first address to the nation stated that all the citizens of Pakistan are free, they are free to go to their Worship Places, and the government has nothing to do with the religious affairs (Jinnah, 1947).

Legal and Institutional Discrimination

Although the legal infrastructure in Pakistan has adopted the international treaties of Human Rights in each of its constitutions, surprisingly a specific group in the country, who are responsible for such violations takes the laws for granted (HRCP, 2020). Although the initiative by the Policymakers is commendable we could not neglect the fact about the occurrence of such violations.

Sectarian Violence

The Asian Human Rights Commission in its report published in 2024, stated that there were significant violations including discrimination, abuse, and others (AHRC, 2024), The Amnesty Report in 2023 also highlighted the misuse of Blaspheme Laws, which specifically targeted the minorities such as Ahmadi and Christians. Some Religious Organization was also highlighted in the report published by Human Rights Watch in 2022, regarding the involvement of such violations.

Forced Conversions and Marriages

The Hindus in Sindh Pakistan have continuously raised their apprehension regarding the forced Conversion of Marriages, in such connection a report Published by Amnesty International in the year 2018, states that over 100 marriages were performed, although this figure is not accurate, but could be helpful in getting an idea toward the problem.

Case Studies

Pakistan has rich culture and religious diversity, having a huge number of population about 96.47% 96.47% are Muslims, followed by 2.14% Hindus, 1.27% Christians, 0.09% Ahmadies Muslims, and 0.02% others. Following are some of the vulnerable groups that face the violation in Pakistan.

Hindus in Sindh: The Hindus are prominent figures in the minority group in Pakistan, their occurrence in Pakistan is from the pre-Arabian Empire. The Hindus in Sindh face frequently forced conversion, as they mainly belong to the Business class they also face violations and abuses such as discrimination, kidnapping, and others. (Minority Rights Group International, 2023).

Christians in Pakistan: Over the decades the Christians have made Pakistan their home, the establishment of the Church of Pakistan and Catholic churches have witnessed their presence for centuries, having 1.27% of total strength, are often observed violence, whereas the demolishing of the worships and false accusation is prominent in Pakistan. (Human Rights Watch, 2022).

The Ahmadiyya Community: A small religious group comprising 0.09% of the total population is most vulnerable to the violations, they face persecution by the various religious groups.

Root Causes

According to Amnesty International, the root cause of violation may be religious extremism (Amnesty International, 2023). The specific religious group uses the Laws of the Land in order to fulfill their motives, which were originally made to safeguard the rights of any other individual group. Such Laws are being manipulated and used to trap innocent minority individuals and later on, they are persecuted (Ahmed, 2019). Socio-economic factors like poverty, and lack of education are also causes for such violations (HDN, 2023). The weak Governance, corruption, and bias found in the judicial body can also be crucial triggering points for such violations.

Methodology: Research Design

We have adopted a qualitative method for conducting the research and in such conditions, we have gathered the available data from the Official Authors were analyzed them. By sharing the above-acquired data, the views of respectable Law officers were also obtained in order to check the reliability of our research.

Data Sources

We have gathered our data from the following sources.

- Reports from Human Rights Organizations 2012-2024.
- Human Rights Watch (2022)
- Amnesty International (2023)

- Legal Documents and Legislation
- Constitution of Pakistan:
- Academic Journals and Articles
- Press Releases and Advocacy Briefs
- Asian Human Rights Commission (2024)

As all the articles published above are up to date hence found it suitable to gather the data.

Ethical Considerations

In dealing with such a sensible topic it is the prime responsibility to design the research in such a way that no sentiments are harmed, for the said reason, the study is compiled with secondary Data, ensuring no direct harm or risk to participants.

Limitations

The study acknowledges certain limitations:

Reliance on Secondary Data: The research is based on secondary data, which may not capture all dimensions of the issue. Primary data collection through interviews or field visits could provide additional insights but was not feasible for this study.

Potential Bias in Reports: Reports from advocacy groups may carry inherent biases. Efforts were made to cross-reference data from multiple sources to mitigate this risk.

Temporal Limitations: The study primarily uses data from recent years, which may not fully capture the historical context of human rights violations against minorities in Pakistan.

Data Analysis

From the Data received from the official authorities and communities, we have gathered the following figures from the year 2008 to 2024.

Table 1

Community	Forced Conversion	Kidnapping	Discrimination	Harassments	Suicide Bombing attacks Causalities	Prosecution Under Blasphemy	Target Killing	Damage to worship Place	Violence, Torture, and Slavery	Sexual Assaults
Ahmadis	63	5	516	3549	86	14	16	14	30	6
Sikh	2	1	18	15	0	0	0	0	0	0
Hindu	153	36	11	2521	0	6	16	6	5	55
Christian	142	19	54	1254	121	8	11	3	72	30

The data reveals a grim picture of human rights violations against various minority communities in Pakistan, each facing unique and severe challenges. The forced conversion of Ahmadis was found as 63, which shows a significant level of religious tolerance, 5 cases of Kidnapping show less frequency. The Discrimination which was 516 documented incidents, the harassment cases are alarming with 3549 cases, one incident of a Suicide Bomber was also found in this community in 2008, although another incident was neutralized which was happened in 2008 by Law enforcement agencies, killing the name of Religion found to 86, along with 14 incident of Worship damages were reported. This particular community faced extreme physical and physiological abuse.

Moving on to the next category the Sikh, where the result has shown that they are not immune to violations. There were 2 cases of forced conversion and 1 case of kidnapping, also there were no cases regarding blasphemy were reported in such a community. It is also pertinent to mention here that during the Era of Imran Khan's Governance, the building of Kartarpur Temple and Kartarpur Rahdari appreciated the religious beliefs of the Sikh community.

Hindu communities have the largest forced conversion ratio, with 36 reported cases, and Discrimination cases are 2,251. Although being an educated community they are able to fight back against discrimination, still they are being charged with blasphemy cases, the damages to the worship places are also a concerning issue in such a community. 55 cases of Sexual assault show a high rate of gender-based violence in the community.

Christians face extensive forced conversions, with 142 cases documented. Kidnappings are significant, with 19 cases, and they experience widespread discrimination, evidenced by 1,254 cases. Harassment is also a substantial issue with 121 incidents. Christians have suffered casualties from suicide bombings, with 8 deaths reported. Legal persecution is evident with 11 prosecutions under blasphemy laws. The community faces targeted killings, with 3 cases reported, and their places of worship have been attacked 72 times. Additionally, they endure severe violence, torture, and slavery, with 30 reported cases, and sexual assaults are a major issue, with 30 cases highlighting the extent of gender-based violence.

Data on Figures of Communities Who Fled to Other Countries

Table 2

Community	Asylum Seekers	Business Migration	Work Visa
Ahmadis	16,384	328	164
Sikh	<200	30	678
Hindu	1,276	329	467
Christian	1,959	218	1,022
Community	Asylum Seekers	Business Migration	Work Visa

Figure 5

The Ahmadies community has the largest number of asylum seekers, totaling 16,384 over the last 15 years. Additionally, 2% have migrated due to business settlements (328), and 1% have left on work visas (164). The Sikh community has fewer than 200 asylum seekers, with 30 migrating for business purposes and 678 leaving on work visas. The Hindu community has 1,276 asylum seekers, with 329 migrating for business and 467 leaving on work visas. The Christian community has 1,959 asylum seekers, with 218 migrating for business and 1,022 leaving on work visas.

Suggestions

Although the efforts of Pakistan encountering violations regarding Religion are commendable, where they have tackled religious-based violations with utmost sensibility. The need for improvement is still necessary, so by concluding the research we propose the following suggestions for the readers.

- Blasphemy Laws should be revised and there would be punishment for those who reported the case but could not prove it, so the misuse could be countered.
- Legislation that safeguards the rights of minorities should be appreciated.
- Law enforcement agencies should be trained to handle the situation where any minority individual is being violated, a recent incident in Taxila where an SSP rescued a woman from an angry mob.

- The independent bodies may be made who could be investigating the religious affairs.
- Religious tolerance education should be made part of the academic so the interfaith sentiment should be appreciated.
- The Public Awareness campaign is where the general public is addressed to tackle religious issues.
- Promoting intra-faith dialogue could help when people from different faiths will sit and discuss their issues to solve them amicably.
- Providing Legal Aid to victims of such Human rights violations, so they can peruse the matter, leads to upholding justice.
- The Data Collection at the Government level should be made, so each and every case should be reported, in this way, the issue could be highlighted and easy to counter.

Conclusion

The Rights of every individual are important, whether they are majority or minority. Being a nation with diversity, it is the responsibility of every individual to help fellow citizens, and to be a helping hand, on the other side the Laws and policies have to be designed in such a way that it would facilitate all citizens equally. By admittance of Rights of minorities, we could not only be able to promote cultural diversity but also Liberal Societies that respect all religion and their followers.
